“.....on any Sunday.....”

Ride to Keluang – The raining season has let up for a couple of weeks now. It's time to hop onto the saddles and go for a much needed ride. We headed for Keluang, a sleepy little town about 110 km from S'pore.

Ah Long recommended this destination. Keluang has a train station and Ah Long love to look at trains. Guess inside this stern “uncle” is a small boy. I think we are all the same. Just that we like different toys.

There were eleven bikes and a car in this ride. Everyone was gung-ho, having been cooped up for the past couple of months. The ride was pretty easy, with Long leading the pack. We were joined by a new friend called Farzly, who rode with us on his African Twin. The traffic along the trunk rode was sparse, but there were a number of traffic lights, which means that we couldn't go as fast as we liked to.

When we arrived at Keluang, Long led us to the Railway Station. It was just as the train pulled in to take in passengers. The car park was full and it took a while to find a slot to park our wheels. The food at the train station was so-so, but it wasn't what we came for. We came because Ah Long wanted to 'see train', remember?

The train left and we sat around for a while. As usual, some wanted to go back by the longer trunk route and some opted for the hi-way. In the end, we stuck to plan and took the NS back to GP.

It was a round trip of about 230 km. We came back nice & early, leaving all with plenty of time left to spend with their families or other friends for the rest of the day.

Colin has been appointed to plan and lead the next ‘.....on any Sunday...’, although he doesn't know it yet! But we are quite sure he will find us something interesting.
